KORINDO Cares for Environment

managed to collect 500 bags filled with plastic wastes, Styrofoam, fabrics, and other organic wastes.

Jakarta – KORINDO Group once again showed its concern towards environmental sustainability. This time, the environmental program initiated is “Ciliwung Clean-Up Action” held last Saturday (4/8). Inviting various parties, hundreds of KORINDO foreign and local employees did not hesitate in getting wet and dirty to pick up garbages scattered in Ciliwung River.

Since morning, the participants in the clean-up action have gathered in Sempur Administrative Village area, Central Bogor Subdistrict, Bogor City. The upstream area of Ciliwung River became the main location in the clean-up action, particularly area starting from Sempur Bridge to Lebak Kantin Suspension Bridge. This Ciliwung Clean-Up Action was also held to commemorate the National River Day that falls on July 27th.

Ciliwung River is known as one of the important rivers in Bogor area, which also irrigates Depok region and even the capital city, Jakarta. However the water quality in Ciliwung River is quite concerning because it is polluted with wastes so it became the cause of flood problem in the cities. Seeing this condition, KORINDO Group took initiative to contribute in maintaining the hygiene of one of the rivers with important role for the capital citizens.

In conducting Ciliwung Clean-Up Action, KORINDO Group also cooperated with Environment Agency of Bogor City, Members of Subdistrict Authorities (Muspika), Ciliwung Community, and the local residents. It is recorded that at least 250 people participated in the event and managed to collect 500 bags filled with plastic wastes, Styrofoam, fabrics, and other organic wastes.

“This action is also supported by Bogor City Government and attended by the Headman of Sempur Administrative Village along with his staffs to jointly clean the Ciliwung River in order to maintain the quality of the Ciliwung watershed’s water resources to keep it clean,”

Mr. Park In Chul said as Vice Chairman of KORINDO Group, who also participated in picking up garbage in the river.
The Ciliwung Clean-Up Action is not the first event held by KORINDO Group. KORINDO has been holding the clean-up action since 2014 and it has been conducted for four times. KORINDO is also committed to hold routine activities to create the clean and healthy environment for people.

Andre Roberto as the representative from KORINDO Group Management, hoped that this small step from KORINDO Group could give inspiration in realizing clean river and improving the water quality in Indonesia.

This action is also hoped to be able to bring awareness for the people living around the river to keep maintaining environmental sustainability and refrain from throwing garbage carelessly.

KORINDO also contribute in fostering the spirit in others in various societies so they could continue similar activity for the sake of sustainability of clean and healthy environment. “May this small activity encourage all parties, especially young generations to continue the sustainability of the river and the water source for our lives and the future generations,” said Mr. Park In Chul.
Bogor – The Ciliwung Clean-Up Action which was held by KORINDO Group on Saturday (4/8) was welcomed with full enthusiasm and reaped praises from the Bogor City Government. The clean-up action, which is consistently being held by KORINDO since 2014 has indeed gained attention from the local government. In its fourth clean-up action, Bogor City Government through Bogor Environment Agency, Ciliwung Community and the local residents were also present to participate in realizing a clean Ciliwung River.

“We truly appreciate what KORINDO and the community have done by joining together to clean up the Ciliwung River, in order to maintain the quality of Ciliwung drainage basin (DAS) water resource so it will always be clean,” said the Head of Bogor Environment Agency, Elia Buntang, in his welcoming speech of the Ciliwung Clean-Up Action.

Elia said that the social service held by KORINDO through Ciliwung Clean-Up Action is very needed today. This is because the Ciliwung Clean-Up Action can be a small step to build people’s awareness over the importance of maintaining environmental cleanliness. Moreover, Ciliwung River has a vital role not only for Bogor citizens living around the upstream area of the river, but also for the citizens of Depok and the capital city of DKI Jakarta, living in the downstream area of the river.

“Environmental cleanliness is not only the government’s responsibility, but the responsibility of all parties, namely the community and private sectors,” said Elia.

Elia added that there will be no one cares about Ciliwung River’s cleanliness, if it does not start from ourselves. He also hoped that the Ciliwung River Clean Up Action does not stop there, but will be continued to improve the water quality of Ciliwung River.

On the same occasion, the Head of Ciliwung Care Community, Suparno said he is very grateful for the initiation of Ciliwung Clean Up Action by KORINDO. This action, according to him, gave initiation to other parties to clean-up the river by taking out the waste in Ciliwung River. According to him, the main problem faced by Ciliwung River is the people’s habit of throwing garbage carelessly.

KORINDO Group will not stop there. KORINDO is committed to continue to hold Ciliwung Clean-Up Action in the future and also other activities in order to contribute for environmental preservation. (cka/ymr)

JAKARTA – KORINDO Group recently established cooperation with The Forest Trust (TFT) from the United Kingdom, which will be conducting assessments on all activities that will be run or have been run by KORINDO, that may impact the environment.

From the assessments, there will be a new commitment from KORINDO in the form of “Forest Conservation Policy”. “The new commitment is considered very important to strengthen KORINDO’s operation in sustainable plantation,” said the management of KORINDO Group.

TFT is a non-profit organization works to change supply chain for the sake of balance between the nature and human beings, and to assist companies in changing their method of taking raw materials and products. In conducting the study, TFT also partnered with a private institution in Indonesia, which is an expert in forestry. This deeper and comprehensive study is hoped to be able to support KORINDO Group’s operation to be better.

There are several things stated on the work plan that becomes the agreement of the parties, namely collecting empirical data such as GIS (Geographic Information System) and remote sensing, HCV and HCS analysis, as well as the study result on the social assessment which has been conducted until today. The data will later be combined with the findings from the company’s operational area, the meeting between the community and clan leaders, and the meeting with several other strategic stakeholders.

Later on, the compiled work plan will be developed and aligned with the cooperation program which was previously conducted by KORINDO-USAID through Lestari program. In the Lestari program, KORINDO and USAID are committed to invite all parties (the government, private institutions, community, and NGOs) to plan together the management of sustainable landscape, in Boven Digoel Regency in particular, and Papua Province in general.

This is in line with the agreement of many parties that the social, environmental, and economic governance are the main principle of sustainable development that is truly needed to anticipate negative impact towards biodiversity, environment, social culture and climate change, which certainly will give benefits to human generations today and in the future. Pangkalan Bun – South Korea’s Minister of Forestry, Kim Jae Hyun, accompanied by South Korean Ambassador to Indonesia, Kim Chang Beom, visited the industrial forest in Central Kalimantan Province, on Wednesday (11/7).

The visited industrial forest is KORINDO’s affiliated company, and located in Natai Peramuan, Kumai Hulu Administrative Village, Kumai Sub-District, West Kotawaringin Regency.

Getentiri is Now Equal on the Lap of Indonesian Archipelago

By: Rev. Felix Amias MSC

After graduated from elementary school in 1979, I was sent by my parents to continue my education in Bade (1979-1982) because there was no junior high school in Getentiri. In the middle of 1979-1980, there was a ship of a company crossing the river. Back then, I did not understand as I was only a freshman in junior high school. But now I quite understand that the company has investigated for a possible business since the end of 1979, especially in plywood business. So I was not even surprised when KORINDO Group came here and started their business activities in 1993 in Asiki and its surrounding area up to now.

Sit is purposely told about my experience when I was in elementary school around this area, that everything was so difficult: transportation, communication, economy, education, health, and social relations. However, what is the community experiencing now?

For now, people do not have to paddle their boats as there are many water vehicles. People do not have to wait for rice or other food material (BAMA) delivery for months from Merauke City. The children do not have to end up like I was, who needed to paddle the boat for two nights to reach Bade, only to look for junior high school, as there are schools here, starting from kindergarten, elementary school, junior high school, to senior high school, even picked up by school buses. The health service in here is considered the best as there are free health services and a representative hospital is being built. Everyone can build relation, mingle, and communicate with other tribes, people from other areas and other religions.

I have to be bold to say this, because I am from here and had been through difficulties. That all of changing circumstances was first due to the presence of KORINDO Group.

The company has worked to fulfil its responsibilities in education field. As I said earlier, that the school around here are one of the best as the schools in other villages do not work well. In addition, there are hospitals being built that are more representative and the medical services are free. The subsidiary of KORINDO Group has also built a plasma plantation area for community.

Regarding Environmental Issues.

Some time ago, there was news circulating about deforestation done by KORINDO Group with forest burning. They said it was monitored via satellite. In this case, I’m one of the people who go back and forth visiting Asiki and its surrounding area almost every month, because I come from the area and must always come home. The issue came up exactly on dry season. Forest fire in South Papua on dry season is a common thing, and can even happen along the road up until you reach Merauke city. And it’s not only KORINDO Group, but there are many other companies that have also cleared the forest for oil palm plantations.
Between KORINDO Group Satellite and Indigenous People.

If you ask about the smoke monitored via satellite, we would answer: Which smoke? If there’s a fire on dry season, that is a common thing here. This is a “flat-area” so when it is rainy season, the whole area would be covered with water and become green again. So where is the problem? I heard that this satellite issue has reached overseas (including the United States). KORINDO Group’s market sources are beginning to be threatened.

But have you ever thought about thousands of employees working here, Papuan children who go to school here, and the people whose health is being treated here? If KORINDO Group walks away, who is going be responsible for all of this? We are going to create new problems which are more fatal and deadly. I am sure people’s way of thinking here is not like that, because that will cause problems for many people. Plywood production is already declining. Some employees are feared to lose their jobs, their salaries had to be cut in half.

It is true that there are many complaints from the community about how the indigenous forest has many forms of life inside; animals, water sources, sacred places, and others that were said to be demolished by the company. But that could also happen because the people themselves do not possess indigenous land map. That is also caused by some members of the community who tried to keep the indigenous forest, but there are some who release the land without letting others know, then this became conflict among themselves. Thus, the forest loss issue is the responsibility of us all, from the government as the one that provides permits for forest management, the investors as the one that conduct the forest management, and the local community itself.

Therefore, the problem of forest loss is everybody’s responsibility, start from the government as the permit provider for forest management, investors as forest management executor, and the local community itself.

Conducts Social Venture with FFLI and NTB

MATARAM – KORINDO alongside Forest for Life Indonesia (FFLI) and the Provincial Government of West Nusa Tenggara (NTB) inaugurated organic waste management by using Bioconversion technology that utilizes Black Soldier Fly. The profit gained from the social venture through this organic waste management will be given back for environmental preservation and the local community’s welfare.

This NTB’s first project was located in Bebae Sub-Village, Lingsar Village, West Lombok, and its operation was inaugurated by the Regional Secretary of West Nusa Tenggara Rosiyadi Sayutt, the Minister of Forestry of the Republic of South Korea Kim Jae-Hyun, Forest for Life Indonesia, and KORINDO. In his welcoming speech in the inauguration last Monday (9/7), the Head of FFLI Foundation, Dr. Hadi S Pasaribu delivered his gratitude to KORINDO for all of the support given so the organic waste processing facility can be well realized.

Appreciation towards KORINDO was also delivered by the Minister of Forestry of South Korea (Minister of Korea Forest Service) H.E. Mr. Kim Jae-Hyun. “Gratitude for KORINDO that has supported this organic waste processing project. The existence of the company’s CSR program will provide benefit for the community as well as the company itself,” said Minister Kim Jae-Hyun. He hoped the success of this project could serve as a model and be replicated by other parties, and NTB can become a pioneer in this sector.

In this organic waste processing, bioconversion technology is implemented by utilizing Black Soldier Fly (BSF) that is capable to process organic waste naturally into source of protein, basic material of biological fertilizer, and various kinds of organic fertilizer. Black Soldier Fly, or named Hermetia illucens in Latin, is a type of fly that is capable to process organic materials naturally to become a source of protein as well as the source of organic fertilizer and its derivative products that are useful for agriculture, livestock, and fisheries.

As explained by the Social Venture Project Manager of KORINDO, Mr. Namhong Kim, the grant provided by KORINDO is meant to solve waste issues and protein production improvement through philanthropic approach in the form of social venture incubation to support earth greening mission and save the environment for the welfare of earth’s inhabitants.

“The surplus obtained as a result of this productivity project will later be used as much as possible for the interest of the project’s sustainability, greening activities, environmental preservation, or other social activities,” said Mr. Namhong Kim.

According to him, KORINDO at the moment is preparing an implementation of a similar model to be applied in Papua. “Later on, organic waste from palm oil factories will be converted for the sake of environmental preservation, and for helping the community’s economic businesses in agricultural sector that produces high-protein food with affordable prices for the community in the area,” said Mr. Namhong Kim. “I never expected that in such remote area, there is a big clinic with the facilities that are equivalent to community health centers (Puskesmas) in big cities,” dr. Anurman Huda, MM.,AAK said as the Deputy of BPJS Regional Division XII in Papua-West Papua. According to dr. Anurman, Asiki Clinic currently has 10,000 participants. This amount of participants is considered a lot for Boven Digoel region, particularly Asiki which located in border area.

Dr. Anurman also praised the performances of medical personnel, from the doctors and nurses who serve local community in Asiki Clinic. According to him, the medical personnel have very good cooperation. Not only in clinic, but the medical personnel are also considered to have high dedication in providing health services for the people around Asiki in remote area.

The doctor who has visited Asiki Clinic in Papua also praised KORINDO for the collaboration with KOICA (Korea International Cooperation Agency) on the company’s role in creating and supporting the government’s program in the health sector. Asiki Clinic has become the representative clinic and is managed professionally. “Asiki Clinic provides impacts not only on its workers, but also on the surrounding community. I believe that KORINDO has done the right thing for health service factors in the work environment,” dr. Anurman said.

At the end of conversation, dr. Anurman hoped that the Asiki Clinic would develop and get bigger to be capable to serve more patients. Asiki Clinic is expected to be an ideal model for the other clinics. Because according to him, there are not many big clinics of companies and accept participants outside company employees. Therefore, KORINDO should not just stop here, but continue to grow to be a clinic that is more representative and loved by the surroundings. (cka)

Wonogiri – Becoming a figure of change can be done by anyone, old and young. As long as we have determination and strong will to be able to contribute and give benefits for our surrounding, the change will certainly be realized. This is exactly what Mbah Sadiman did. This middle-aged man of 66 years old became an important figure for the greening of Gendol Hill, located in Geneng Village, Bulukerto Subdistrict, Wonogiri Regency, Central Java.

Since 1995, Mbah Sadiman has planted thousands of trees in Gendol Hill on approximately 100 hectares land. His effort were not in vain. Now, the people of Geneng Village have felt the benefits. More than 600 village residents are able to access clean water without fear of drought. Mbah Sadiman’s step gave inspiration to various parties, including KORINDO. On November 29th 2015, KORINDO along with a number of stakeholders, namely Regional Government, Students, Paguyuban Budiasi, NGO Gerakan Bumi Hijau, the Indonesian National Armed Forces (TNI), Indonesian National Police (Polri), and Mbah Sadiman himself, held a planting action of 7,000 tree seedlings, consisting of 4,000 seedlings of beringin trees and 3,000 seedlings of fruit trees, which are avocados and durians.

Meanwhile, fruit plants, particularly durian trees, have now produced fruits and are predicted to harvest by the end of this year as a result of the joint tree planting in 2015. As a next step, KORINDO is trying to build cooperation with Gerakan Hijau Bumi, an NGO that helped Mbah Sadiman in empowering the forest in Gendol Hill, to create an agri-tourism area in Bulukerto. The agri-tourism area will be a source of economic improvement for the people in Bulukerto, through the sales of fruit and vegetable produce and also nature tourism in the form of camping ground and natural water spring in the top of Gendol Hill.

When asked about the obstacles faced by Mbah Sadiman in taking care of the plants in Gendol Hill, he mentioned about maintenance. “Well-maintained beringin trees grow large, but there are still many that are not maintained. The same goes to fruit trees. Some are not maintained, but the well-maintained ones grow nicely”. In addition to maintenance, the issue of fertilizer also become an obstacle faced by Mbah Sadiman, particularly for fruit trees. This is because fruit trees need a lot of fertilizer so they can grow lush and nicely. The issue of fertilizer received a fast response from KORINDO by providing aid in the form of 16 sacks of maintenance fertilizer for beringin trees and fruit trees.

“I thank KORINDO for the aid given. I pray for KORINDO so its business can be more successful, and could contribute in environmental greening program, here or elsewhere,” said Mbah Sadiman.

Mr. Yi Sun Hyong hoped that this could ease Mbah Sadiman’s effort to overcome the maintenance issue. He was also amazed by Mbah Sadiman’s persistence and diligence in changing the face of Gendol Hill around his home, that was previously dry, and now has becoming beautiful and blessed with abundant water supply. The hill area also became more productive with planted fruits, such as durians and avocados, to be used as additional income for the people.
KORINDO Papua Teaches Vegetable Planting to Community

PAPUA – KORINDO Group continues to promote empowerment programs for the community. Not long ago, through its Oil Palm Plantation Division in Papua, KORINDO, along with the local community utilized an empty land and turned it into a vegetable garden that gives benefits from economic side and for people’s health.

The initial planting was carried out by Mr. Yi Jong Myeong, as the Senior Managing Director of KORINDO Papua. The types of vegetables that are often used for planting are corn, kale, chili peppers, and other plants that can be beneficial for the community. The land used for the vegetable cultivation is an area of 10m x 10m and will be handed over and developed by the community themselves.

The vegetable cultivation activity is meant to stimulate and motivate people so they would want to strive by utilizing lands such as house yards and other community-owned lands. “We hope the people will want to cultivate their own lands,” said Robi Sinai as the Public Relations Assistant Manager and Social Service Coordinator of Vegetable Farming.

Robi explained that the produce from the planting will firstly be used to meet people’s needs. If the people are already able to meet their needs, the land can be developed as well for business and bring extra income. KORINDO will also remain committed to continue to provide seedlings to the community.

One of the residents of Aiwat Village, Paulinus Kanduga admitted to feeling very happy for the seedlings aid and the assistance on plant cultivation from KORINDO. According to him, this aid is very useful because people do not yet know how to do vegetable cultivation. In addition to seedlings, KORINDO also gave farming tools to the community in the form of hoes, shovels, dodos (oil palm harvesting equipment), plant seedlings plastic bag, spray equipment.

On the same occasion, Peter Boryemu as the activity executor, revealed that the plant cultivation program will not end there. KORINDO will continue to control the development and provide assistance to the community. The farming business is being carried out considering Indonesia’s condition as a tropical country, it is very possible for vegetables to grow throughout the year.

This fact makes vegetable plants cultivation increasingly growing every day in Indonesia. In addition to the high possibility of the vegetables growing in Indonesia, vegetables also possess benefits and high economic value. (sat/cka)
